DESIGN

Alton Bay is master architect Ricardo Bofill's first large-scale condominium project in the United States. Drawing inspiration from Miami Beach's distinct architecture, its proximity to the water and its natural vegetation Bofill has created an urban oasis that borrows from the local surroundings with a distinctly original synthesis of classical and geometric forms to generate a true sense of place. Because the property is surrounded by water, Bofill created a sense of transparency by integrating water-like glass architecture alongside a wild botanical scheme that crawls up the walls of the podium and over the pool deck. The design for Alton Bay reflects choreography of spaces that interact with one another to maximize a sophisticated lifestyle, with close attention to context, material and the smallest of details to achieve the highest standards of technology and quality, while incorporating a creative design aesthetic.

ABOUT MIAMI BEACH

Located minutes from the Miami Design District, Faena District, Sunset Harbor and the most exclusive restaurants, Miami Beach is an enclave of great real estate and hotels. With the recent arrivals of Faena House, The Miami Edition, The Ritz-Carlton and Como Hotel – King & Grove's Versailles renovation – this swath of property has become Miami Beach's most desirable destination, while maintaining the feel of a quiet oasis that gives residents privacy and exclusivity.
